

The Flying Tea-Room of Glendaruel

Polka

The Flying Tea-Room of Glendaruel: named for the tea-pavilion at the old Glendaruel Hotel, a classic piece of Scottish Victoriana festooned with claymores and targets, stags heads and tartan drapery which used to be the destination of the summer mystery tours by horse charabanc for trippers from Dunoon, now alas no more. It was blown away in a terrible gale and was found next morning dashed to pieces in the neighbouring fields.

Kilmodan Church, Clachan of Glendaruel