

Dancing in Denmark Street

Reel

Dancing in Denmark Street: is intended to accompany The North East Style. The dance concerned was nearer to a riot-a full blown industrial dispute in the grand old style which the editor once took part in at The Broch, a wildcat strike with all the trimmings: people rampaging about wrecking things, victimisation and blacklegging, bosses barricaded in their yards and workers trying to break the gates down. The Battleship Potemkin was nothing to it.

Denmark Street in 2006; the rubble is all that is left of the fishyards where I worked for seven summers
