

Glengarry's March

Glengarry's March: In buying the sheet music for “The Duke of Perth”, I got four tunes for a shilling (five pence)—“The Duke of Perth” (with instructions for dancing the reel of this name), “Lady Mackenzie of Coull”, “The Rose Tree”, and “Glengarry’s March.” Ten years later when I joined Aberdeen University O.T.C. Pipe Band I was surprised to find that “Glengarry’s March”, though obviously composed as a pipe tune, did not seem to be played by pipers of my generation. We included it in a set of “wee 2/4s”: “I’ll gang nae mair to yon toun”, “Mount Stewart House”, “The Lovat Scouts”, “Dornoch Links”, “Glengarry’s March”, and “The Man at the Loom”. This set was recorded by Ian Duncan in Volume 4 of the Piping Centre’s Recital Series issued by Temple Records (1997). The earliest setting is in Angus MacKay’s light music MSS probably dating from the 1840s; it was published by David Glen, although it was after this point that the tune acquired the little semiquaver/demisemiquaver run down from D to G characteristic of the modern versions. It is a classic little 2/4 march.

“The Duke of Perth”, published in 1952, for playing for dancing is one of the first pieces of printed music I ever bought, in Inverurie sometime in the middle 1950’s
