

Hurrah for the Bonnets of Blue

March

Hurrah for the Bonnets of Blue: This is in David Glen's Highland Bagpipe Music, but I think the setting here may be better; a Victorian tune, it was first published in Cameron's Selection of Violin Music, 1854. Blue bonnets were the characteristic headgear of Scotsmen for centuries, so much so that they became synonymous with the country and its aspirations, especially military, as we see in songs like 'Blue Bonnets o'er the Border'

'Send him a tablet in his next parcel', a Lever Bros. advert from the Oban Times, 1916