

Lady Nelly Wemyss

Jig

Lady Nelly Wemyss: I picked this up many years ago and it is very nice to play; it sits well with “The Stool of Repentance.”

Lament for Sir Rory Mor

Lament for Sir Rory Mor: I learned this from Bob Nicol’s singing and the transcription and ornamentation are mine. Sir Rory was one of the greatest of the MacLeod chiefs, and his court at Dunvegan was a vigorous centre for the traditional performing arts: “a mansion blithe and festive, thronged with young men and with maidens, where the clangour of the drinking-horns was loud... The chessmen would rattle and the harp would be sounding... Thereafter would be chronicled the epic... of the Fiann...” (J. Carmichael Watson, ed., Gaelic Songs of Mary MacLeod, Gaelic Text Society: Edinburgh, 1982, pp. 21, 25)
